

Hearst Corralled Up-State Men in Home Meeting

Boomers Declare Leaders From 22 Counties Called on Editor and Asked Him to Run for Governor

Conference a Mystery Plan to Put Publisher on Stump Aims to Revive Interest in His Campaign

One of William Randolph Hearst's political agents said yesterday that the Hearst boom for Governor was anything but destroyed, and declared that Democratic state committeemen from twenty-two of the up-state counties who attended the state committee meeting on Thursday had called on Mr. Hearst at his Riverside Drive home immediately after the meeting and demanded that he lead the fight this year.

According to the Hearst supporter, who had a list of sixteen of the twenty-two counties which he said sent representatives to call on Mr. Hearst, the meeting between the up-state leaders and the editor-politician lasted three and a half hours. Included in the delegation, it was reported, were state committeemen, county chairmen and other Democrats of prominence.

The sixteen counties represented in the twenty-two, according to the Hearst supporters, were Allegheny, Cattaraugus, Columbia, Delaware, Genesee, Greene, Niagara, Ontario, Orleans, Saratoga, Schuyler, Steuben, Sullivan, Ulster, Wyoming and Yates.

All Republican Strongholds Every one of these is a solid, rock-ribbed Republican stronghold, where the Democratic vote is negligible, not only at election but in Democratic state conventions, since, under the law, representation in the latter is based on the vote cast for the party's nominee for Governor.

Men prominent in the Democratic state machine said that they had not heard of the alleged visit of the Democratic leaders from these counties to Mr. Hearst, but declare that it is not impossible that William J. Conners, Mr. Hearst's political manager, urged them to make the visit and then made it appear that it was voluntary.

According to the Hearst supporter who made public the news of the visit, speeches were made by all the visitors, and Mr. Hearst, who is said to have received them in his library, made one in reply.

Whether or not such a meeting occurred it is known that Mr. Hearst and Mr. Conners were together for several hours yesterday at the editor-politician's home, trying to arrive at a plan which would bring about a semblance of life to the cadaver of the Hearst boom after its encounter with the steam roller of the Democratic State Committee on Thursday.

To Put Hearst on the Stump It is said that at this conference a tentative plan of campaign was agreed upon. It was proposed that Mr. Hearst make himself active in every Assembly District upstate under the guise of supporting the Democratic nominees for the Legislature, as a preliminary to building up a state machine through the New York State election to the 1924 Democratic National Convention.

It was also decided that the editor-politician should make speeches in every up-state city on reaction, gas, electricity, home rule and other subjects which Mr. Hearst will seek to put forth as his own discoveries.

Plenty of red fire, brass bands, paid cheer leaders and all the other paraphernalia of a well organized political campaign will be arranged for wherever Mr. Hearst goes.

Mr. Conners is of the opinion that Mr. Hearst should start the tour at once. Mr. Hearst, it is said, wants to go to California first. Hearst agents have been touring the entire up state making all sorts of promises to Democratic leaders to induce them to jump on the Hearst band wagon.

Women City Employees Active Lately, women employees of the Hyman administration have left their duties here to go up state to organize the women on behalf of Mr. Hearst. The most recent of these trips was made by Mrs. Louis Reed Welzmillor, Deputy Commissioner of Markets. She left for the Hearst organization known as the Democratic Women's Alliance, formed to counteract the anti-Hearst movement among the women in the regular Democratic organizations. Mrs. Welzmillor admitted that she had been gone two days and had spent some time in Syracuse and would organize a branch of the Women's Democratic Alliance in that city and in other up-state cities. She denied that she had received instructions from the Hearst headquarters in the Hotel McAlpin, which is presided over by Mr. Conners. Yet Mrs. Welzmillor said she went on her trip, conferred for a considerable time with Edwin H. Harris, who is Mr. Conners's chief lieutenant.

Bradley Beach Pooh-Bah to Put One-Piece Flappers in Hoosgow

Mayor and Director of Public Safety Borden Back From Atlantic City Determined on Relentless War on Exposed Limbs and Bathing Brevities

Frank C. Borden Jr., who is kept busy these warm summer days holding down his dual job of Mayor and Director of Public Safety of the Borough of Bradley Beach, went to Atlantic City recently. When he came back he was just full of bright new ideas.

With Mayor and Director of Public Safety Borden to get a bright idea is to act upon it. One might think it was a kind of a cliché job being Mayor and Director of Public Safety of a small place like Bradley Beach, but you can take it from Mayor and Director of Public Safety Borden that it's no such thing.

It wasn't so bad in the good old days when only boys had their hair cut, and a woman who went on a beach in less than enough clothes to keep her comfortable in Quebec on January 14 would have been marked down as a shameless hussy. In those times the Mayor's job was by far the bigger half of the contract; but now, with what knickerbockers, bobbed hair, rolled stockings and one-piece bathing suits, the Mayor's job is to keep the beach adjacent to Manhattan as got his hands full. Not to say his eyes full, too.

Bathing Beauties Get Ukase Anany, Mayor and Director of Public Safety Borden came back from Atlantic City convinced that there were several things that needed doing at Bradley Beach if public safety was to continue to be directed pure and undefiled. Thus it happened that happy, carefree bathers posing for amateur snapshots of Venus before the bath at Bradley Beach yesterday were shocked into extravagant protest when confronted by a series of severely plain notices prominently displayed. The notices were signed by Mr. Borden, as Mayor and Director of Public Safety, and to make them doubly impressive their genuineness was attested by Frederic P. Reichy, borough clerk. They set forth in terms no third class moron could misinterpret, that from this date on all public places within the limits of Bradley Beach, all absolutely nix in Bradley Beach. If Bradley Beach is not made any way as respectable as Atlantic City, it will not be the fault of Mayor and Director of Public Safety Borden.

The notices state plainly that hereafter no person shall be loose on the streets in any sort of a bathing suit unless "the same is fully covered by a long coat or other clothing."

Also that "no person shall wear or expose himself or herself in a bathing suit commonly known as a one-piece bathing suit in any public place within the limits of Bradley Beach."

Also that covered or uncovered bathing suits are to appear on Main Street except when worn by people who live west of Main Street and are in the course of Section 1, applies, and tail-paulins must be draped.

Also that men's bathing suits must be two pieces, "the jersey or flap of which must be worn on the outside of trunks." Women's "shall be so designed that a skirt or flap be attached and that their limbs shall be entirely covered by either stockings or by other garments."

Finally the punishment is a $200 fine or a maximum of ninety days in the Bradley Beach hoosgow—or both.

Atlantic City Hunts Bootleggers' Friend Among Politicians

Score Smirched by Charges of Protection Given for $5 Fee, Official Insists; 9 More Arrested in Raids

ATLANTIC CITY, July 21.—The Federal and county authorities will begin an immediate investigation to determine the truth of State Senator Charles D. White's statement that a well known politician has been furnishing "100 per cent protection" to bootleggers for a "tax of $5 a case."

"I feel it my duty," said Prosecutor E. C. Gaskill Jr. this afternoon, "to invite Senator White to appear before the Atlantic City grand jury to tell his story. There are about twenty men who are of special political prominence, and on each of them might rest the odium unless the matter is taken up and probed."

Meantime liquor is the topic of the hour. Nine more arrests were made today in the Federal mopping-up campaign. These bring the total to fifty-five. More are expected. Assistant District Attorney Frederick W. Pearse said that warrants would be issued for a hotel proprietor, his bartender and a policeman on charges of conspiracy.

The prisoners were arraigned today in the United States Commissioner's office. They did not seem to be fearful of their future, rather were perplexed as to why they had been so suddenly taken into custody. They were examples of wet wickedness when there were many bigger and more flagrant offenders in the vicinity. They joked and laughed and in some instances gambled on the outcome of their cases.

The city is host at present to an assortment of customs agents, Internal Revenue men and detectives. Persons with well trained and recognized thirsts, however, may be overheard saying that there still are a few places outside the ocean that may be relied upon to be wet.

Bandits' Car Upsets The chase was a hot one, and shots were exchanged, but without any damage being done. The bandit car turned down Crescent Street, Long Island City. At the corner of Pottersville Street, the car was struck by a police car, and the bandits fled. The car was overturned, and the bandits were taken into custody.

Gunmen Taken In Race After Twin Hold-Ups

Patrolman in Commandeered Car Recovers Pay Roll Seized by 4 Men Near Police Headquarters

Box Man Robbed in Door Stunned by Blow and $552 Taken; 3 Bandits Escape in Flight Over Roofs

The police expressed confidence last night that information given them by two of the four men who robbed Jacob Laux of $5,170 at Browne Street and Columbia Avenue yesterday would lead to the early apprehension of their companions. The two prisoners, in jail in Long Island City, were arrested within half an hour after the hold-up.

Laux was robbed in the first of the two hold-ups within a few blocks of police headquarters yesterday. In the second Nathan Sakolsky, president of the National Paper Box Company, was robbed of $552.80 in the doorway of 182 Grand Street. The three men who held up Sakolsky made their escape and had not been caught last night.

Show Guns and Crowbar Laux, who is vice-president of the Stutz company, which makes cigar boxes at 285 Monroe Street, went to the Cor Exchange Bank branch at 210 North Avenue, B. 2, 2 o'clock and drew the money for his weekly pay roll. Returning, four men accosted him at Columbia Avenue and Browne Street. Three of them showed him revolvers and the fourth brandished a crowbar. Laux handed over the bag without a struggle, and the four ran to a big automobile which stood at the curb and made a speedy getaway.

Laux wasted no time in reporting the robbery at Clinton Street police station. He was able to give a fair description of the men and the number who escaped. A general alarm was sent out by Captain Hynes from the police telegraph bureau, and the call had just reached Patrolman Michael New of the Queensboro Bridge station, who was on post at the Long Island City end of the bridge, when a car answering the description appeared, headed for Long Island City at top speed.

New commandeered a car belonging to George Ash of 24 Java Street, Brooklyn, and with Asher driving gave chase. Two detectives attached to the District Attorney's office joined in.

Bandits' Car Upsets The chase was a hot one, and shots were exchanged, but without any damage being done. The bandit car turned down Crescent Street, Long Island City. At the corner of Pottersville Street, the car was struck by a police car, and the bandits fled. The car was overturned, and the bandits were taken into custody.

The four gunmen, uninjured, continued their flight on foot, carrying the money bag, and New and Asher ran the men to earth, while the other two managed to get away. The money was intact.

At the Hunter's Point police station the men said they were Harry Cohen, twenty-seven years old, of 342 East Seventy-fourth Street, Manhattan, and Harry Walker, twenty-two years old, who said he had no permanent address, but that his mother lived at 197 Ross street, Brooklyn. They confessed to the robbery of the hold-up, and the police of Queens began a general search for the other two.

Sakolsky, the victim of the second hold-up, had drawn $552.80 from the Chatham & Lenox Bank branch at 182 Grand Street and was returning home when a man stopped him and asked him for a match. As Sakolsky halted, he was grabbed from behind by two others, who hustled him into the doorway and snatched his bag. One of the trio hit him on the back and he was temporarily stunned, but recovered in time to see his assailants making their escape by way of the stairs. He gave chase, but lost his quarry on the roof, the three making their escape by way of a building on Mulberry Street.
